

Notetaking from Narrative Text

Introduction Video

When and why to use this strategy

TEACHER

Hi and welcome to the strategy for Notetaking from Narrative Text!
Notetaking helps you remember what you have read

Have you ever been asked to write about a book or story you have just read? Did you struggle with trying to remember all the details?

Notetaking gives you something to refer back to when you are writing about a story you have read.

This strategy is useful when:

- You're reading narrative text. Narrative text tells a story.
- And you need to remember important parts of the story

The Notetaking from Narrative Text strategy has three steps

1. List the questions
2. Read for meaning
3. List the answers

For this strategy you'll be using an outliner to take notes.

Now watch the step videos to learn how to use this strategy!
